Mrs. John A. Gilkey Suicides.

Lying upon the floor of her room at her home in North Middletown, this county, Mrs. Gilkey, wife of Dr. John A. Gilkey, a prominent physician of that place, was found by a negro servant about four o'clock Friday afternoon in an unconscious condition.

Upon investigation it was found that she had taken a quantity of strychnine, evidently with suicidal intent. Dr. Gilkey was summoned from his office when antidotes were administered by Drs. Henry and Cook, who had also been summoned. Drs. Fithian and Daugherty, of Paris, were called and they reached North Middletown in a short while in an automobile.

Everything known to medical science was resorted to in an effort to save her life, but without regaining consciousness she passed away at 7:30 o'clock Saturday morning.

Mrs. Gilkey was the daughter of Mr. John W. Skillman. It is thought she was despondent as a result of an estrangement between herself and Dr. Gilkey, as the latter, it is said, has been residing for several months with his father, Mr. G. W. Gilkey.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Gilkey is survived by a son, Marion Fithian Gilkey, her father, Mr. John W. Skillman, and two sisters, Mrs. B. W. Rash and Mrs. Elizabeth Skillman, of Kansas City, Mo.

The funeral services were held Monday morning at the North Middletown Christian church, conducted by Rev. J. W. Ligon. The burial took place in the North Middletown cemetery. The pall-bearers were: Davis Patrick, John W. Jones, John J. Jones, Mason Talbott, H. S. Caywood and Charles Hailton.

Mails are Greatly Increased.

The increase in the volume of mail usual at the Paris postoffice during the holidays has begun, and many more than the normal number of letters and packages are passing through the local office. Putting off until the last minute delays parcels in transit and therefore it is likely a number will not be received by parties before Christmas, and the attention of the public is again called to the important fact of getting their packages in early. Christmas coming on Sunday the postoffice will observe Monday as holiday, and the patrons of the office are invited to call on Sunday and receive their mail as it may be delayed until Tuesday if not taken out Sunday. The office on Sunday will be open as usual from 11:30 to 12:30.

Wonderful Progress.

In the days of Daniel Boone and Davy Crockett and Kit Carson travel to and through the South was either on foot or horseback and full of hardships. But today one may leave any Northern city, and in a day or two, traveling in perfect comfort under care sufficient for even the most delicate invalid, be set down in a part of the country which will make him rub his eyes and believe that winter never comes. The Northern winter's heart is cold, the Southland's heart is warm. And in her fond and true embrace we find a host of joys untold. We find an ever present charm. Where winter has no place.

Winter means to the Northland, ice, snow, sleet and chill, cold and discomfort; to the Southland, blue and brilliant skies, genial airs and balmy sunshine, the unrestricted pleasures of outdoor life, scenery that never fails to enchant, foliage of perennial green, and flowers in perpetual bloom. The abundant and delightful outdoor life of the Southern winter is its chiefest charm, and no attractive feature has been overlooked or forgotten. Golf may be played on the finest links in the country; tennis on clay courts kept in the pink of perfection; surf bathing in water at a temperature of 70 degrees and above, riding, motor-ing over picturesque roads through tropical scenery and on the hard sand beach; yachting, rowing and fishing at sea and in land locked waters; chair wheeling and bicycling on palm lined promenades and through tropical jungles. The finest climate in the world—every day a June day, full of sunshine. For the hunter, the South provides practically every feathered and furred creature from quail and squirrels to wild turkey and deer; and for the fisherman, a bewildering variety of game fish from the rainbow hued trout to the majestic tarpon. The Queen & Crescent route has made it possible for the winter traveler from the North to revel in luxurious "palaces on wheels," which speed like the wind through regions of beauty and bloom. The many thriving cities, attractive resorts and historic points along the route make it doubly interesting. With the superb express trains, electric lighted and equipped with the latest types of Pullman drawing room, state room, club, library and observation sleeping cars, it is little wonder that so many tourists in the Northern and middle States visit the South by this great railway system. This route operates the finest trains in the United States between Cincinnati, Ohio, and Jacksonville, Florida, and New Orleans, Louisiana, and low round trip winter tourist rates are being made from all points along the line.

Wants Lexington Postoffice.

A new Richmond will enter the field for the Lexington postoffice in the person of Captain John W. Throckmorton, who has decided to get in the race for this Federal plum, and announced that he would in a few days forward his application to Washington. Secretary of State Ben L. Bruner is a staunch friend of Captain Throckmorton, who will endorse his application and work for his appointment. Captain Throckmorton has many friends in Paris who hope that he will land the job.

Make Them Work.

An exchange says: "Fiscal Courts now have an opportunity to make a class of citizens who have not borne their part of expense of government do so. The man who does not pay his poll tax can be put on the roads of the county and compelled to work them out at the rate of one dollar per day. This provision rigidly enforced means the saving of hundreds of dollars every year."

Winter Wheat Sown.

Kentucky has eight thousand fewer acres sown in winter wheat this fall than it had in the fall of 1909. Figures announced by the Department of Agriculture show 792,000 acres sown in Kentucky as against 800,000 acres in 1909. The indicated total winter wheat area of the United States is 34,485,000 acres.

Kentucky's Population Shows Small Gain.

The population of Kentucky as revealed by the recent census is between 2,280,000 and 2,290,000, a gain of about 6.6 per cent. Ten years ago the state's population was 2,194,174. Only four states have shown a smaller percentage of increase than Kentucky. They are Iowa, New Hampshire, Missouri and Vermont. It is believed that Kentucky will lose none of her eleven Congressmen unless Congress has decided upon an apportionment in excess of 218,001, as the number of inhabitants to be represented by each Representative in the Lower House. The present ratio is 194,182. The consensus of opinion is that the poor showing is due largely to the defective educational system and the emigration of Kentuckians to the new states of the Southwest and Northwest.

Paid More for Hali Than Crop Brought.

An instance of the misfortune shared by those who counted upon the pool's holding this year is reported by the Lexington Herald in the experience of John Toohey of Fayette county, who recently sold his tobacco on the Lexington break. On August 20, Mr. Toohey bought the half interest of his tenant, John McMullin, in a crop of 7,970 pounds. Believing that the effort to pool the 1910 crop would be successful, and that emergency prices would be paid for tobacco not in the pool, Toohey paid $13.50 per hundred for the crop's half. December 8, he sold the crop, receiving $5.60 per hundred. The half bought cost about $538, and the whole crop brought only $438, so Toohey gave away his tobacco and lost about $100 besides.

The "Turkey Trot."

The "turkey trot" is the latest out in the terpsichorean line. It was discovered on the Barbary coast by a Russian danseuse, who says it is more artistic than the hooche coochie and not too naughty to be produced before the Russian court, which she proposes to do. The "turkey walk" is another recent innovation, discovered by innumerable Republican patriots who expressed the laudable desire to im-molate themselves on the altar of public office last fall.

To Hunt in Africa.

Dr. Marius Johnston, of Lexington, who recently accompanied Harry Payne Whitney and Paul J. Rainey on their Arctic expedition, is now planning an African hunting trip with Rainey and the two will sail early in February. The expedition will sail from New York and will be thoroughly equipped for a several months' stay on the Dark Continent. Much of the time spent on the hunting trip will, it is said, be in East Africa and on some of Roosevelt's old trails.

Free Sample Aids Old Men

The sudden change from years of activity of both body and mind to the quiet of later years causes the human system to undergo many changes, chief of which is in the digestive organs.

It becomes harder and harder to get the bowels to move promptly and regularly and in consequence many elderly men suffer not only from the basic trouble, constipation, but from indigestion, headache, belching, sour stomach, drowsiness after eating and similar annoyances. It is first of all necessary to keep the bowels open and then to tone the digestive muscles so as to get them to again do their work naturally. A violent cathartic or purgative is not only unnecessary but harmful, and something mild will do the work just as well.

After you have got through experimenting with salts and pills and waters of various kinds, and have become convinced that they do only temporary good at best, then try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a mild, gentle, pleasant-tasting laxative tonic that is especially adapted to the requirements of old people, women and children, and yet is effective enough for anybody. Your druggist, who has handled it successfully for a quarter of a century, will sell you a bottle for fifty cents or one dollar, but if you want to make a test of it before spending any money send your name and address to Dr. Caldwell and he will gladly send you a sample bottle free of charge.

This remedy is rapidly displacing all other forms of medication for the cure of stomach, liver and bowel trouble, and families like Mr. O. F. Wisner's of Syracuse, Ill., and Mrs. Carrie Culler's of 325 N. Notre Dame street, South Bend, Ind., are now never without it in the house. They have tested it and know its grand value to every member of the family. Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, R. 500 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

Strong Healthy Women

If a woman is strong and healthy in a womanly way, motherhood means to her but little suffering. The trouble lies in the fact that the many women suffer from weakness and disease of the distinctly feminine organism and are unfitted for motherhood. This can be remedied.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

Cures the weaknesses and disorders of women. It acts directly on the delicate and important organs concerned in motherhood, making them healthy, strong, vigorous, virile and elastic.

"Favorite Prescription" banishes the indispositions of the period of expectancy and makes baby's advent easy and almost painless. It quickens and vitalizes the feminine organs, and insures a healthy and robust baby. Thousands of women have testified to its marvelous merits.

It Makes Weak Women Strong. It Makes Sick Women Well. Honest druggists do not offer substitutes, and urge them upon you as "just as good." Accept no secret nostrum in place of this non-secret remedy. It contains not a drop of alcohol and not a grain of habit-forming or injurious drugs. Is a pure glyceric extract of healing, native American roots.

All the talking we can do in favor of FOX RIDGE will not convince you of its superior quality half so rapidly as a sample load.

Christmas for Two by Clarissa Mackie

The crowded east-bound train dis-gorged two passengers at the little red station and then thundered on its busy way.

A long stage, rusty and ramshackle, backed up to the platform, and the driver's lusty "All aboard!" brought the girl and the young man hurrying into its dismal depths.

"I s'pose you're for Ferguson's place," remarked the driver as he turned the horses skillfully in the narrow space.

"Yes," said the man rather gruffly.
"I thought there would be a carriage to meet us."

"So there has—so there has! Been prancin' around her for two or three hours, but I guess they got disgusted;
anyways, they left word for me to stay here till the train came in and if anyone was bound for their place to bring 'em along. The train's four hours late as it is, and I don't suppose them servants want to be kept away from their Christmas dinner."

"How long will it take us?" asked the girl.

"A matter of an hour or so," was
the unconcerned reply.

The girl stifled an exclamation of annoyance and she drew still farther away from the vicinity of the morose young man. The latter turned up the astrakhan collar of his overcoat and dropped his chin into its depths.

They had started forth that morning
so joyfully—Polly Standish and Derrick Gordon—newly engaged and blissfully happy. Things had gone wrong from the very beginning. Polly's aunt, who was to accompany them for the short stay at Ferguson's hospitable country house, had failed to put in an appearance, and consequently had been left behind. That was vexatious.
Then the train had been delayed by snow drifts and during the four hours'
wait in the cold train Polly and Derrick had quarreled.

"Nice Christmas day," volunteered
the stage driver in his queer, cracked voice, as they squeaked over the hard-packed snow.

"Very!" returned Derrick, sarcastically.

There was a long silence as the strong white horses plodded up the steep incline of the mountain. Here the snowfall had been light and only served to dust the dark green pines and hemlocks with a white powder.

They had reached the top of a steep incline and were rolling evenly over a level stretch when suddenly, without an instant's warning, the stage crashed down and precipitated the passengers and luggage in an ignominious heap under the driver's seat.

"Are you hurt?" asked Derrick coldly, as he assisted Polly to her feet.

"No, thank you," she said stiffly, as she peered out from the curtained window.

The driver was soothing the frightened horses and his nut-cracker face was knotted anxiously.

"Lost a wheel, by gorry!" he said,
ruefully. "Smashed it to flinders!"

Derrick had crawled out and stood beside him.

"This is the dickens of a mess—how are we to get to Ferguson's place? Are we near a telephone—or where are we anyway?"

Luke Sanders scratched his ear thoughtfully. "I took a short road across—'tain't the usual route to Fer-guson's and we ain't near nobody! Ten miles from anywhere. The only thing to do is for me to ride one of the horses into the village and send back another wagon. You and the young lady better get out and move about a bit and keep warm. You might build a fire—there's plenty of fuel." He was unharnessing the horses as he spoke.

"Why can't we all ride—or better still, Miss Standish can ride one of them and I will walk beside her. We will get there much quicker and can keep warm and have something to eat. We're almost starved." Derrick glanced quickly at the stage where Polly's pale face was framed in the darkened opening.

"Can't nobody ride Bob-white. A jumpin' kangaroo ain't nothin' to that horse if anybody gets on his back! Just you stay here and make yourselves comfortable and warm and I'll be back in the course of an hour or so." He tethered the ferocious Bob-white to a tree by the roadside. Then from the space under his seat in the stage he drew forth a basket covered with a white cloth.

"This here basket has got a Christmas dinner inside—my wife fixed it up for old Miss Benton down to the ford
but I can stop and get another basketful for the old lady. You two are welcome to it." He clambered on the waiting horse and smiled as his horny hand closed around the generous bank-note that Derrick slipped from his pocket.

"Merry Christmas to you and your wife, sir," he called back over his shoulder before he disappeared around a turn in the road.

Derrick did not dare to look at Polly

Standish; he knew she was sitting proud and defiant with a contemptuous curl on her red lip. Instead, he stared away through the aisles of trees, made into golden paths by the later afternoon sun.

It was too bad that Christmas
should have turned out so disastrously for them both. There was to be a jolly party at the Fergusons and in the evening a Christmas dance. Perhaps Ralph Ferguson would send forth another conveyance for them—but it would go by that other road. They were marooned on the short cut.

A glimpse of Polly's woeful face brought a revulsion of feeling. Poor little Polly was cold and tired and he was acting like a brute.

Without a word Derrick approached a small clearing in the middle of which grew a young pine tree.

It was the work of minutes to gather
an armful of wood and broken branches and to clear a space of snow.
Presently a bright fire crackled cheerfully and then Derrick brought cushions and blankets from the stage and prepared a place for Polly.

"Come, Miss Standish," he said politely. "If you will draw near the fire
we will have some dinner."

"I'm not hungry," said Polly, holding her hands to the blaze.

"At least you will sit down and wrap this blanket around you—so," insisted Derrick.

"Thank you," said Polly without enthusiasm.

From the blanket Derrick produced
a large plate loaded with a generous Christmas dinner. There were turkey and cranberry sauce, stuffing and mashed potatoes and, gravy, turnips
and celery, and a whole mince pie.

Derrick managed to convey half of the dinner more or less daintily to the plate and this he placed before Polly. "Eat," he said sternly. "You will need the nourishment before we reach Ferguson's."

"I am not a child," said Polly re-
sentfully.

Derrick did not reply. He fell to his own dinner with a vigorous appetite and it was not until he turned to give

"This is our Christmas tree, Polly Dear," said Derrick, in a low tone.

Polly some mince pie that he discovered that the weary girl had eaten a little of the dinner and then fallen asleep in her nest of blankets.

For a long time he watched the changing lights on her sweet face as
the branches tossed in the wind; then, softly he arose and approached the little pine tree standing in the middle of the clearing.

The cones were silvered with snow
and it looked like a Christmas tree decorated for a festival.

Derrick opened his suitcase and brought out sundry white packages.
These he tied to the tree with colored cord. Gay toys for the Ferguson children were added until the little tree stood forth bravely in its fine attire.

"Polly!" he called softly. "Polly!" Polly sat up with startled eyes seeking his face. For the instant she had forgotten their misunderstanding, but suddenly their light clouded.

"Come here, Polly, and see our Christmas tree," urged Derrick.

Reluctantly she came, a rose flush straining her pale cheeks. But yet her red lips were obstinately set in a straight line.

"This is our Christmas tree, Polly,
dear," said Derrick in a low tone.
"Yours and mine! Shall we be happy and enjoy not only this one, but many,
many others after, please God? Say,
dear."

"Oh, Derrick, how wicked of us to quarrel when we should be happy! I am so sorry!" sobbed Polly in Derrick's coat sleeve.

"And so am I—and now I'm glad,"
said Derrick after a time. "Now, let's enjoy our own particular tree before anyone comes! I shall be Santa Claus—and you may be Mrs. Santa Claus!"

"I have things in my bag, too,"
blushed Polly as she hastened away.

An hour afterward Ralph Ferguson brought a sleighload of merry-makers in search of them. Together they sat demurely on a log before a dying fire.
Near by stood a little pine tree, powdered with snow, and dripping with hanging cones.

"You're just in time for the biggest Christmas tree you ever saw," said Ralph as he gathered up the lines and clucked to the horses.

"We've had our Christmas tree,"
said Derrick mysteriously, while Polly smiled back at him out of happy eyes.

The Grumbler

"These chops are not fit to eat! They're cooked to death and stone cold." He pushed back the plate angrily. "If there's anything decent about this hotel—I've yet to find it. The food, the service, the appointments—rotten! All of it!"

"Well, you know, dear, resort hotels are never—"

"Oh, for goodness sake, Helen, spare us that excuse—you've made it a hundred times. I've probably been to as many resort hotels as you have. And some of them were pretty bad. But they couldn't touch this! Now if you'll just stop trying to excuse it!"

"Why, I'm not trying to excuse it—I don't know why I should. I'm no more responsible for us being here than you are."

"You're not? Well it seems to me you were pretty keen about coming."

"Why, yes, I wanted to come—we both did. But I never heard of this place until you brought me the booklet."

"But you kept at me to get circulars of hotels along the Maine coast—
something out of the 'beaten path.'"

"Why, Warren, that was what we both wanted—surely you haven't forgotten?"

"No, and I haven't forgotten how you enthused over the prospectus of this particular place."

"And didn't you?"

"I wanted to please you, of course,
and when you set your heart on this,
naturally I—"

The waitress, who for several moments had been hovering uncertainly about them, came up now.

"Are you through, sir?"

"Yes, we're through. You don't suppose any one could eat that food, do you? How do you expect to keep your guests when you serve such stuff as that?"

The waitress made some murmured apology.

"It isn't her fault, Warren. She has to serve whatever is given her in the kitchen. What's the use of speaking to her?"

"Oh, there's no use speaking to any one here. I've complained to every one from the manager down, and nobody seems responsible." He was sipping his black coffee distastefully. "What do you say to cutting it short and going back?"

Her heart sank. She had known it must come soon, but she had tried to ward it off as long as possible. To go back before they had planned
would be an admission of failure—
an admission that their honeymoon had not been a success and that they wanted to have it over.

"Couldn't we go somewhere else
first?" she ventured nervously.

"There's so many places."

"Haven't you had about enough of this? I think I have."

She winced and her lips trembled.
So it was not only the hotel, but he was tired of being alone with her.
He had had enough; he wanted to go back. She remembered once he had said: "If we could go to some far-away island, just you and I, and live our lives there alone—ah, sweetheart, I would ask for nothing else."

And now—now that they were married—two weeks had been enough!

"When do you want to go?" she asked it with an effort.

"The sooner the better. Tomorrow."

"What time?"

"As soon as you can pack. Wait, I'll get a time table from the office."

There was more eagerness in his voice and manner than there had been for days.

He came back with the time table.
"Here's a train in the morning at 11:45. Do you think we can make that?"

"I'll try."

"You might do some of the packing tonight," he suggested, "then you'll not be so rushed. And we might even make an earlier train, there's one at 10:22."

"Very well."

They rose from the table now and he went with her to the foot of the stairs.

"I'll not come up just now. I think I'd better settle the bill and see about getting the trunks down."

She started to go up alone, and then turned suddenly.

"Warren!" there was a pleading note in her voice. She went back to him and laid her hand on his arm.

"Warren, don't ask me to pack tonight—this is our last night here. I want you to take me for a little walk.
It's such a beautiful moonlight—
let's go down by the beach."

He hesitated, and then said reluctantly: "Well, I suppose we can get up earlier in the morning."

It was a beautiful night—the moonlight, the long stretch of beach, and the soft rush of the waves. She slipped her arm through his and was teasing slightly against him.

If he would only respond to her!
If they could make of this last night
something beautiful, if he would help her bring into it some of the love and romance she so longed for it would do much toward redeeming the past two weeks. It would give to their honeymoon a beautiful ending, and she would always hold that in her memory and try to forget the rest.

"Oh, dear, it is a wonderful night,

isn't it?" she murmured softly, swaying closer against him.

"Yes, it's a good, clear night, but I hope that east breeze doesn't mean rain tomorrow."

She swallowed the lump in her throat and walked on in silence for a little while. The she tried him again.
"Just think, dear, that just you and I out of all the world should be here alone! Just the sea and sky and moonlight—and you and I here together! Oh, I love to think of it like that!"

He made no answer.

She let her head rest against his
arm. "Oh, I do care so much, dear,"
it was almost a whisper. "Don't you?"

"Why, yes, of course; what a foolish question. I think you're tired, that's what's the matter. And you won't feel like packing tomorrow.
Come, we'd better go back."

She saw the futility of her efforts.
There was no use trying again. She waited a moment until she was quite sure there would be no quiver in her voice, and then answered quietly.

"Yes, we had better go back."

Two Kinds of Love

Do you know that the less you demand the less you get?

It is so in everything, but especially true in love.

If you go through life crying, "I wish somebody loved me," the chances are that no one will. But if you cry fiercely, "I will have love; I must have it! I can't live without it," you'll get it.

You'll get it because you'll fight for it; the strength of your longing will impress itself on others and draw them toward you.

Sometimes you hear people say of a girl, "How popular that girl is, and yet she does not lift her little finger to please."

But she earns her popularity; you may be very sure of that fact. She may not be selfish nor vain, but neither does she believe in needless selfabnegation.

If you belittle yourself, people do not care for you.

The world takes you largely at your own valuation, and if you adopt a meek and self-deprecatory attitude the world thinks, "Oh, pshaw, what do I care for the winning of such a valueless heart? This person is too poor spirited for me; there would be no satisfaction in such poor conquest."

Self-esteem can of course be carried to an extreme; but self-respect cannot,
and self-respect compels you to demand a certain return for what you give.

If you sit down and bemoan, "I am plain and unattractive, why should any man care for me?" in all probability no man will.

What you must do, is make the most of such charms as nature has given you, and determine that you will have love, and that you will win it.

Don't allow the man you love to look upon you as a meek, unimportant little thing.

Make him feel that in winning
your love he has won something worth while.

If he feels that other men envy him
he will be in the seventh heaven.

The more charming his wife the greater his self-esteem at having won such a treasure.

Do not be satisfied with half-hearted love. If that is all a man has to offer send him away and wait for the man who can offer you his whole heart.

That's the only way you can live
happily after marriage.

You cannot live in peace and happiness adjusting yourself to the new life, living in perfect nulty, unless you love with your whole heart and are loved equally well in return.

I know a girl who is going to be married in the near future, and I know she does not love the man with all the love that she is capable of feeling for the right man.

Both man and girl have drifted into the engagement simply because they have been continually thrown together; neither one is really and sincerely
in love.

But they will marry and peg along
in a half-hearted way, neither loving nor hating each other.

It's rather a dreary outlook, isn't it?

Don't make that mistake; be satisfied to give and take only the best.

The honest love of a good man is every woman's birthright, and if she accepts a base imitation in its place
she has only herself to thank for the misery that follows.

The Real Thing

"What's doing in the way of amusements?" asks the newcomer
of the old inhabitant of Hades.

"Baseball game every afternoon," answers the old inhabitant.

"Baseball? You don't mean it!"

"That's great. I was a fan from wayback on 'arin. On the square, do you have baseball every day?"

"Sure thing."

"By ginger! This place suits me.
Baseball! Say this can't be hell, then."

"Yes it is. The home team always loses."—Life.

C. Reade's Mistake

"It was Charles Reade, wasn't it,
who wrote: 'Nothing is so terrible
as a fool?'"

"Yes, but he was wrong. I live
next door to a newly married couple.
If Charles could see them he would
at once admit that two fools are even more terrible."

A woman tries to get even with a man she likes by being especially mean to some other woman he likes.

New Baptist Church Dedicated.

The new Baptist church, erected on Main street, between Ninth and Tenth, at a cost of approximately $35,000 was dedicated Sunday with most impressive ceremonies.

The dedicatory sermon was preached by Rev. Dr. E. Y. Mullins, president of the Baptist Theological Seminary, in Louisville, his subject being "The Function of the Church in Society."

The congregation that assembled filled the spacious structure and every available inch of space was taken up with extra chairs or was occupied by those standing.

Dr. Mullins at the conclusion of the sermon stated to the congregation that an indebtedness of $8,000 stared the officers of the church in the face. He said they had worked earnestly and faithfully, as had the members of the congregation, in the labor of raising funds necessary to pay every dollar of cost of building the church had appealed to members of the congregation, those of other congregations, and citizens in general to help in the liquidation of the debt and said that everybody in the congregation would now be given a chance to contribute. Tellers were appointed who passed through the congregation and the appeal of Dr. Mullins was not in vain. While the amount given was liberal it was not sufficient to meet the indebtedness. It totaled the handsome figure of $5,200.

The interior of the church is a work of art. The building is equipped with one of the best and most modern organs to be had.

The decorations were simple, baskets on red, pink and white carnations being placed around the pulpit altar.

Another large audience gathered for the evening service the sermon being preached by the Rev. Dr. J. N. Prestidge, of Louisville. The Baptist church has a congregation that numbers nearly four hundred communicants and is one of the eldest in the city.

The congregation is without the services of a regular pastor, Rev. Geo. W. Clarke having resigned his charge in June, to become the pastor of the Baptist church in Henderson, Ky.

Two beautiful memorial windows adorn the church, one to the memory of Mrs. Eva Hanson, by her daughter, Mrs. H. H. Ewalt and Miss Letitia Hedges.

The officers of the congregation are: Deacons—Charles Stephens, John A. Larue, E. P. Clarke, Walter Clarke, S. E. Bedford, W. H. Clarke and J. T. Martin. Treasurer, W. H. Clarke; Clerk, J. B. Burnett; Trustees, William H. Hinton, Charles Stephens and John A. Larue; Organist, Miss Giltner; Superintendent of the Sunday school, Walter Clarke.

Georgetown Wholly "Dry" at Last.

The annual "water wagon" pledge is a thing of the past in Georgetown. There will be no "swearing off" this New Year, for Georgetown is finally dry.

Acting in the place of Circuit Judge R. L. Stout, Judge L. C. Fryer, of Cynthiana, yesterday ordered the mandate of the Court of Appeals filed. As soon as this move was a matter of court record the Sheriff and his deputies began to notify the ten saloons to close and by 10:30 o'clock the lid was on tight. It was "good-bye booze" for Georgetown. Before they closed, however, they did a land office business and almost every saloon sold out all the stock they had on hand.

Wins Suit in Garrard Court.

The case of Spears & Sons, of Paris, against Banks Hudson, was on trial last week in the Garrard Circuit Court at Lancaster, Ky. The suit grew out of a hemp deal. The jury decided that Hudson must take the hemp seed back and pay Spears & Sons $2,500.

BREATHITT MEN FREED

John Davidson, Hacker Combs and Jason Deaton Acquitted of Murder Charge.

JOHNSON GOES FREE ALSO.

Warrant Against Wiley Combs For False Swearing in Circuit Court is Dismissed.

After deliberating two hours and ten minutes the jury in the cases of the Breathitt county defendants accused of the assassination of John Abern on trial here at 9:40 o'clock Saturday night brought in a verdict of acquittal. Foreman J. T. Martin presented the verdict, which was as follows:

"We, the jury, find the defendants, John Davidson, Hacker Combs and Jason Deaton, not guilty."

Following the reading of the verdict by Circuit Clerk W. H. Webb, the friends and sympathizers of the accused gave expression to their joy in an enthusiastic demonstration which continued for fully ten minutes and which Sheriff Thompson and his deputies were powerless to check. During the demonstration John Davidson, one of the defendants, was affectionately embraced by his aged father and mother, while congratulations were showered upon the jury by the defendants, their friends and attorneys.

As soon as he could make himself heard amid the general rejoicing which followed the verdict, Judge Halbert announced to the defendants that they stood acquitted of the crime charged against them in the indictment and could now return home.

The court also in this connection rendered a decision acquitting A. S. Johnson of alleged attempt to bribe William Stidham, the star witness for the Commonwealth to leave Paris and not testify against the accused.

The day was one of intense anxiety for the three defendants from the time the attorneys engaged in the defense and prosecution of the cases began their arguments at ten o'clock Saturday morning, until the verdict was announced. The court room was packed almost to suffocation, as many citizens here in addition to the witnesses and friends of the accused desired to hear the speeches.

Three speeches were made on a side, former Circuit Judge James P. Adams leading off for the defense. He was followed by George B. Batterton, county attorney, for the prosecution. Judge Denis Dundon made the second speech for the defense, and at the conclusion of his able argument, an adjournment was taken for dinner.

When court reconvened, A. Floyd Byrd, of Winchester, who made a State-wide reputation prosecuting the Hargis cases, made the second speech for the prosecution. He was followed by Attorney A. H. Patton of Jackson, while Commonwealth's Attorney R. B. Franklin concluded for the prosecution.

The case was given into the hands of the jury at 7:15 o'clock upon the reconvening of court for the night session, and they immediately retired for deliberation.

During the interim the jury was out Judge Halbert sentenced three prisoners previously tried and convicted. They were Cleveland Stafford, white, 23 years for maliciously cutting and wounding John McKee, also white; William Stevenson, colored, five years for uttering a forged instrument; T. Bryant, a Lancaster negro, charged with killing John Doty, a Somerset negro, while on an L. & N. excursion from Cincinnati, life sentence.

Judge Halbert, who presided at the trials, will leave here Sunday for Gretna, here on Monday he will convene the December term of the Greenup Circuit Court.

His courtesy to attorneys and witnesses, his absolute fairness to all and his prompt and expeditious manner in conducting the trials elicited much favorable comment here.

About twenty witnesses, including former Sheriff Ed Callahan and Dan Abner, brother of John Abner, the murdered man, left here on the late car for Lexington, where they spent the night returning to Jackson on Sunday morning. Callahan, who was really the backbone of the prosecution and who did everything in his power to convict the defendants, was one man who was not jubilant over the verdict. Callahan, when asked for an expression on the result of the trial, remarked in his characteristic manner: "I am done, and have nothing to say."

In this connection, it is recalled that Judge Denis Dundon, in his speech for the defense, scored Callahan for his activity in the prosecution, saying among other things that he did not blame the attorneys for the prosecution for seeking to shake Callahan from around their necks; that they had brought him here as a witness and had refused to put him on the witness stand so he could remain in the court room and direct the prosecution.

It was learned that the cost of these Breathitt county trials to the State will aggregate $2,300, which goes to show that shooting bees in the "City of Sudden Death" come rather high.

The warrant against Wiley Combs, who was charged with testifying falsely before the jury Friday was dismissed when the case came up yesterday for investigation. The warrant was dismissed by the consent of the attorneys for the prosecution, and Combs was permitted to return to his home in Breathitt county.

Convict Lyncher of Kentucky Boy.

At Newark, Ohio, Saturday, the jury in the case of Montella Watha, a Haytian negro, charged with first degree murder in connection with the lynching of Carl Ethrington, an anti-saloon league detective, returned a verdict of manslaughter. The jury had been out since Friday afternoon and was up practically all night in considering the case.

The lynching of Ethrington, who was formerly of Springfield, Ky., occurred last July and was due to a bitter liquor fight, the saloons remaining open for a year in Newark after the county had voted dry. The anti-saloon league sent Ethrington into the town to get evidence against the saloonists and a riot followed.

This was the first conviction of rioters in the case, others having been convicted on minor offenses. Over twenty more alleged rioters are to be tried.

HOW TO DRAIN FRONT YARD.

A Little Work May Do Away With Going to Law.

Thought spent on the drainage of the front yard reaps many returns. If you are on the same grade as your neighbors, you are entitled according to law, to allow all water that naturally flows that way to run over on your neighbors, but, in actual practice it does not pay as there are always disputes as to whether it naturally runs over on them, says "The Delineator." On this account I advise that you build into the yard your own inlets in order to take away all your own surface water. It is to be presumed that your house water-pipes from the roof all lead into the sewer and that the sewer runs out to the street through your own yard. This being the case, set small copper inlets in the walk at thirty-foot distances, leading to terra-cotta pipes which empty into the sewer.

At intervals over the yard, about thirty-foot centers, set inlets of galvanized iron, square in shape, at a height that will be flush with your sod when the yard has settled. Allow two inches for this although in three or four years there generally has to be a shortening of the terra-cotta pipes to fit the shrinkage—an easy job. These inlets should be so set that they will catch the storm water from extra heavy rains. There can be no rule given about it. An engineer can give you the exact spot for each, but never knew an intelligent gardener who could not also do it. Study the lay of the land and decide how the water will run, and at the point—such as a corner—where it will meet with some obstacle to dam back, set an inlet.

Ordinarily there need be no outlet to the drainage in the beds and borders, but in a yard more than two feet higher on one side than on the other in a fifty-foot lot the trench at the lower side should have an inlet set in the front (lower) end, connected with the sewer, or there will be trouble to grow fine plants there. Plants will stand all kinds of neglect, but none but aquatics will stand "wet feet."

The Revenge of the Beavers.

At the reservoir at Saddleback Pond recently at Rangely, Me., beavers' work in dam construction was found to interfere with the water supply from Saddleback stream. These busy engineers had constructed a tight dam which had retained considerable of the supply of the mountain reservoir, and workmen each day tore out their work only to find it rebuilt on their next visit. Good sized tree sections had been hauled in and placed in the dam by the beavers. After several destructions of the beaver's dams there was again found to be a stoppage in the supply of water through the main pipes. The dam had not been rebuilt, but on close investigation it was found that these cunning engineers in revenge apparently had built a dense screen across the strainer, which had prevented the flow of water through the main pipe.

New England and Napoleon.

The hostility of New Englanders to the first Napoleon was sincere and deep. A remarkable instance of this feeling is to be found in the manner in which the townsmen of Boston received the news of his first abdication. The incident has been brought to notice through an interesting exhibit in the historical collections of the public library of that city. It is a ticket admitting the bearer to a "solemn festival at the Stone chapel, in commemoration of the goodness of God in delivering the Christian world from military despotism." Boston, June 1814.

Ends Winter's Troubles.

To many, winter is a season of trouble. The frost bitten toes and fingers, chapped hands and lips, chilblains, cold sores, red and rough skins, prove this. But such troubles fly before Bucklen's Arnica Salve. A trial convinces. Greatest healer of burns, boils, piles, cuts, sores, eczema and sprains. Only 25c at Oberdorfer's.

Saved From Awful Death.

How an appalling calamity in his family was prevented is told by A. D. McDonald of Fayetteville, N. C., R. F. D. No. 8. "My sister had consumption," he writes, "she was very thin and pale, had no appetite and seemed to grow weaker every day, as all remedies failed, till Dr. King's New Discovery was tried, and so completely cured her, that she has not been troubled with a cough since. Its best medicine I ever saw or heard of." For coughs, colds, la-grippe, asthma, croup, hemorrhage, all bronchial trouble it has no equal. 50c. and $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by Oberdorfer.

The Wherefore of It.

Mrs. Crabb—"The Wilkines boast that their servants have grown gray in their service." Crabb—"Humph! From worrying about getting their wages, probably."

Banks On Sure Thing Now.

"I'll never be without Dr. King's New Life Pills again," writes A. Schingee, 647 Elm street, Buffalo, N. Y. "They cured me of chronic constipation when all others failed." Unequalled for biliousness, jaundice, indigestion, headache, chills, malaria and debility. 25c at Oberdorfer's.

No Color for Men's Clothes.

No matter how passionately mere man may long for more color in his clothes every effort to effect a revolution has failed thus far. Nor is it to be any different this winter. The decree has gone forth once more that sombre hues are to prevail among well dressed men. The only hope for the color-scheme male lies in his handkerchief. Even the reign of the resplendent sock is over. Brown is to be the chief color in clothes; dress waistcoats remain set at white pique or black velvet; hats are to be as they were; tie-pins, if worn at all, must be "simple and expensive"; ties themselves are to be limited to black, black and white stripes, or dark blue with a large white spot. But there is one ray of hope. "Pyjamas must be white silk, with violet braid fastenings." And a violet silk dressing gown will be quite the thing.

Have You Tried It?

There is a bottle of Cardui waiting for you at the drug store. Have you tried it? If not, we urge you to do so, before your troubles have obtained such a hold on you, that nothing will drive them out.

Even now, it may be nearly too late. But try it anyhow. If anything can help you, Cardui will. It has helped in thousands of cases, where other medicines had been tried in vain. Why should it not do the same for you?

Take CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

"My daughter, Octava, would have been in her grave today, had it not been for that fine medicine, Cardui," writes Mrs. Laura Lawrence, of Drennon Springs, Ky. "Nothing I tried helped my daughter, until she had taken Cardui. I had sent for the doctor, when I thought of your medicine and got a $1 bottle. When she had taken four doses she became all right. I often recommend Cardui to my friends."

Your druggist sells Cardui with full instructions for use on the bottle.

Feeding the Heifer.

Breeding the heifers at the right time will be of little avail if the management is not such as will develop the milking habit. The feed must be such as will sustain the cow and enable her to yield all the milk that her system can make. Here is a point that should not be overlooked.
The heifer or cow should be in good condition before freshening in order that there need not be a double strain on her digestive and assimilative systems to keep up the bodily conditions and at the same time produce milk. If the milk-producing functions can be directed in their channels unrestricted the possibilities of large productions will be greatly enhanced.

The necessity for feeding succulent food must be very apparent. Grass silage, soiling crops or roots and balanced grain feeds, according to the season of the year, are the articles on which the cow feeder can depend for a class of feed that will enable the cow to yield heavily. Dry feed must be such as can be easily digested and the nourishment taken from it without a heavy draft on the energies of the system during the operation.

The habits of productiveness cannot be well fixed without regular feeding, and in such quantities as the system can utilize it. This brings me to a chapter on the art of feeding that must be deferred until some future time. But regularity in feeding is too often underestimated. As soon as the milk runs empty more feed should be put in the hopper. The cow's system should not be called upon to yield up some of the stored-up material in order to keep up the business of milk making, for that would be an interruption of the general processes of the system and certain penalties in diminishing milk production are sure to follow.

Goats and Hazel Brush.

A B. Wilson of Putnam county, Illinois, has a large woodland farm
a few miles from his home place.
One 50 acre field of it containing hazel brush and blackberries was fenced hogtight and a carload of goats put upon it three years ago.
The first year they killed every blackberry bush. The second year they destroyed the hazel brush and the third year, everything in the field is dead except the largest timber, and the ground is now clean, with a good stand of grass. He says there is no great profit in these goats
but they do clean up the land very effectively. They kill practically every green thing to which they have access. They are bought in the spring and sold in the fall and have to be fed only in winter. They are fenced in with woven wire 26 inches high and three wires above it. He will buy 500 or 600 goats for similar work next year.

Mr. Wilson has had a live stock partnership with his tenant on this timber farm for three years, sheep and hogs being raised. Three hundred ewes were bought and they and their lambs, about 600 in all, were fed. Disease took a number of these sheep in spite of what was done for them, but for this the project would have been successful. The hogs did better and their owners made some money in feeding 120.

Joax—If they bailed the water.

No Demand.

"Why don't people write poems like
"Paradise Lost" or "Dante's Inferno"?
asked the sincerely literary person.
"What's the use?" rejoined the confident scribe. "All the people I know of who bought the works you mention had to be persuaded to buy them for the sake of the pictures."

Needle Caused Death.

The mysterious death of a child

plained in a peculiar way at a recent inquest. A doctor said that in some unexplained way a needle had penetrated the baby's chest, and the beating of the heart against its point caused death from hemorrhage.

After straddling a pole thirty feet below the surface of the earth and within three feet of eight feet of water for twelve days in an old, unused
well near Bagley, in Johnson county, N. C., a young German was found still alive and in the act of eating a frog.
The young chap was on his way out
to Bagley when he met two men, Charley Creech and Doc Jones, who were apparently intoxicated. They threatened the German, who thoroughly frightened, took to his heels.
For ten days a search had been made for the missing man, and Creech and Jones were about to be arrested for his supposed murder. A searching party carelessly looked down the well as they were passing by it and discovered the man, who had been there twelve days. He had fallen into the well and lodged on the cross pole.

Wants to Help Some One.

For thirty years J. F. Boyer of Fertile, Mo., needed help and couldn't find it. That's why he wants to help someone now. Suffering so long himself he feels for all distress from backache, nervousness, loss of appetite, lassitude and kidney disorders. He shows that Electric Bitters work wonders for such troubles. "Five bottles," he writes, "wholly cured me and now I am well and hearty." It's also positively guaranteed for liver trouble, dyspepsia, blood disorders, female complaints and malaria. Try them. 50c at Oberdorfer's.

Something to Remember.
Bear this in mind, love letters are never burned until after you've married the girl, and sometimes not then.

We Know
-BLOODINE-
Will Help You
To Regain Your Strength
and Energy.

Report of the Head Physician in a Leading New York Hospital
on the Cure of Catarh.

"A few years ago we considered that we were doing well if we cured ten per cent. of the cases of catarh brought to us, but since the introduction of 'Bloodine' into our hospital we cure more than 90 per cent. of all the cases of Catarh in its various forms brought to us. Catarh of the Head, Catarh of the Eyes, Catarh of the Bladder and Urethra, Catarh of the large intestine, Catarh of the Larynx, Pelvic Catarh, Catarh of the Throat, and Catarh of the Stomach are quickly cured with 'Bloodine.' It builds new tissues, gives new energy, new life, new blood and strength to any part of the body attacked by the Catarhal germs."

Bloodine is a powerful tonic, nourishing food medicine, composed of valuable tonic stimulants obtained from vegetable drugs. 'Bloodine' contains no narcotics or other dangerous drugs which merely deaden pain temporarily, but give no permanent relief or cure the cause of your disease. 'Bloodine' is a powerful body builder and blood maker; it is the best remedy known to the medical profession to enrich thin, watery blood and supply new, rich red blood to the whole body.

FREE. To prove the wonderful merits of BLOODINE we will mail a large sample bottle for 10 cents in silver or stamps for postage.

Boulden and was married on Thanksgiving day, 1907, to Mr. Leonard Morgan West, of Pueblo, Col., in which city she has since made her home. Conflicting Reports.

There is much concern over the conflicting reports from Baxter, Tenn., of the death of Howard Edwards, of this city, who was killed or committed suicide at Baxter Thursday morning. One report says Mr. Edwards killed himself while another says he was murdered.

The body was brought home Friday by Mr. Ossian Edwards, his father and the funeral services were held Saturday afternoon. While at Baxter Mr. Edwards learned that his son had been assassinated, but the identity of the alleged assassin could not be secured as he had made his escape.

The story of the tragedy conveyed to Mr. Edwards was that his son had been up late Wednesday night and about eleven o'clock someone attempted to kill him by firing two shots through the door. Later in the night three pistol shots were heard by the inmates of the house and going to the room of Mr. Edwards found him lying on the floor in a pool of blood, all of the shots having struck him in the region of the heart. He, according to this story, died Thursday morning about 6:30 o'clock.

A news dispatch from Cookeville, the county seat of Putnam county, in which Baxter is located, and published in the Nashville papers gives the following:

"Having summoned a friend to witness the suicide of Howard Edwards, a member of the firm of Audey, Edwards & Co., of Baxter, Tenn., shot himself three times in the breast at his room in the Maxwell Hotel yesterday, producing wounds to which he succumbed in a few hours. Just prior to this incident, Mr. Edwards went to the door of Lawrence Grace's room in the same hotel. Mr. Grace, who is cashier of the Baxter Bank and Trust Company and against whom, it is said, Edwards harbored some imaginary grievance, refused to admit him, whereupon Edwards endeavored to break open the door. Mr. Grace fired two shots through the door, but neither bullet struck Edwards.

"Mr. Edwards then called Mr. Godsbey, whom he asked to come to his room. When Mr. Godsbey entered the room he found Edwards with a revolver in his hand.
"Turning the weapon to his breast, Edwards remarked: 'I am going to end it. I am going to kill myself.' With these words he fell over on the bed and shot himself three times.
"A physician who was summoned to attend the wounded man, asked Edwards what he meant. 'I meant to kill myself,' replied Edwards. 'Do you think I have succeeded?' After an examination the physician told Edwards that the wound was fatal. 'That's all right,' said Edwards."

A Sensible Judge.

The Police Judge of Stanford has an idea of punishing offenders of the law as to be of great benefit to the community and people whom he serves according to the Danville Messenger which says:

"Stanford has one of the best Police Judges in the State in Judge 'Jack' Menefee. He is determined to make the way of the transgressors so hard that they will live in dread of his court. For some months a negro has been brought into court almost every week charged with devilment of some kind.

"Judge Menefee placed fine upon fine, and finally ordered the police to give the coon a good whipping. The police were a little shy on their authority to do so and refused. Not to be outdone in his determination, Menefee warned him that next time he was in court the thrashing would be forthcoming, notwithstanding the comment as to his authority. The other day the negro was brought up as usual and the Judge heard the case. At conclusion of the testimony, the court said to the negro, 'Step out here in the back yard a minute, if you please.' The negro did so, and in less time than it takes to tell it the Judge had procured a piece of box top and was beating a tattoo on the negro's breeches that could be heard for many blocks. The beating he gave that coon was so effective that he immediately left town and went to work on a farm. If some more medicine like this would be administered in other towns the result would be fewer arrests and less loafing."

As this is the first time an airship will have been seen in Paris everyone should witness the flight. The date of Saturday was selected in order to give all school children an opportunity to witness it.

Eleventh District Elated Over Showing.

The people of the Eleventh Congressional district, with its nineteen mountain counties, are elated over the excellent showing made in the increase of population during the past ten years. While a number of the Blue Grass counties, with all their school, church, social and educational facilities, have lost considerably in the past decade, only one county in the Eleventh district shows a loss, and that is Wayne, which has lost about two hundred. The aggregate gain in the nineteen counties in the district approximates $55,000.

This is the only real mountain congressional district in the state, it being the only one in which there is not a county outside of the mountain chain. The largest gain was in Bell county and the next in Whitley, with Pulaski third. The gain in Pulaski county is 4,693. In Pulaski county this is especially surprising, for there has been a large exodus during the past five years from this county to the Western States and it was hardly expected that Pulaski would hold her own, now having 35,936, the largest in the district and also the largest in the State with the exception of a few counties with cities like Covington, Louisville, Lexington and Owensboro. The progress in a commercial way has also kept pace with the increase in population, and to-day the Eleventh district holds the record of commercial development in all probability over any district in the State, and it has not yet fully donned its swaddling clothes. The people all over the district are highly elated over the showing.

Two-Headed Calf.

The latest freak to be reported in Fayette county is a calf with two heads. The animal was born last week at the home of Richard Elkins, colored, who lives ten miles from Lexington on the Harrodsburg pike. It was perfectly formed with the exception of the neck and heads. The neck is very short and the two heads seem to come almost directly from each front shoulder of the animal. Elkins says when he first saw the calf, whose mother is a full-blooded Jersey cow, he thought that he was cross-eyed. The animal seemed to move either head with ease and looked healthy. It was still living Saturday afternoon.
